

According to Mr. Clausen, this is part of the classical definition of a hero:

A hero is someone that connects two worlds that are not normally connected.

A hero may bring together two different groups of people.

A hero may also connect people with a idea, ideal about the world, or a “good” way that the world should be.